Gary Grimshaw: That is Bad Dog (Al Shamie). 1970. This is when I came back from California, turned myself in, and poster bail. And at that time, Al Shamie was the art director for the White Panther Party. This is probably one of the first things we did in collaboration. I did all the lettering and he drew the picture.

John Sinclair Freedom Rally: John Lennon, Yoko Ono at Crisler Arena
- Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Reprint (1993) has actual bands that player and is 3-color offset edition of 1000, printed by L'Imagerie, under license from Grimshaw.

Gary Grimshaw: there are two or three different versions of that,
different colors.

John Sinclair Freedom Rally

Part of an interview of {Peter Andrews} by {Michael Erlewine}:

Peter Andrews: {John Sinclair}... in the previous year, 1971, I produced the {John Sinclair Freedom Rally}, while I was the events director at the university, at {Crisler Arena}. The {Rainbow People} or the {White Panthers} had a student organization, so by all legal rights, they could sponsor a concert on campus.

I'm not gonna' go into that whole show at this time, because that's a whole long story itself. {John Lennon} and {Yoko Lennon} agreed to appear on the show and they agreed to appear on it and I agreed to promote it. I wasn't going to promote it if it was gonna' be a bomb.
And I didn't want to be associated with it and I didn't think it would be good for {John Sinclair}, this big event. What it was gonna' show, was how little people really did care for him being in jail. He was fading away. This was the government's hope.

Before john Lennon agreed to appear, I thought it was going to be a disaster. I produced the show. We had {Stevie Wonder}, all these radical speakers of the day. It was filmed; it was broadcast live.
On and on and on. {John Lennon} appeared and I had a chance to meet with him about three different times. {John Sinclair} got out of jail, right after that event.

They granted him bail and the marijuana laws were overturned, the CIA bombing things was all in that too. They beat the government, which really stopped the government from having permission to wiretap without permission. A very landmark case. Not many people know about that. Not to mention overturning the marijuana laws.

Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen, Buddies In the Saddle at Hill Auditorium - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: This is a great piece by Chris Frayne, who worked under the name of Ozone. Frayne, is one of the more important poster artists in the Midwest. Unfortunately, Frayne died at an early age and not much has been done to collect and document his work. Much of his work can be seen illustrating the Commander Cody band. George Frayne, Commander Cody, was his older brother. This is a very fine Ozone piece, one of his best.

Gordon Lightfoot at Hill Auditorium - Ann Arbor, MI Notes: Gary Grimshaw: "I like the Gordon Lightfoot and the use of the color blue."

This ultra rare piece is classic Grimshaw, one of the few artists who used large areas of color, as you see here, an expanse of red with blue embellishment. This is a stunning piece. Most of Grimshaw's work from this period have this very simple use of color, always producing a calming effect on the mind. Works great on the wall. - Michael Erlewine

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival 1972 Gary Grimshaw: there are four different versions of this, and the only difference between them is the ticket information (at the bottom of the poster). I think this is the second version. The last version was meant to sell at the show and there is no ticket information. The commemorative one has not ticket information.

And there is one before this that has less information. And there is one after that with more information. And a fourth edition that had no information.

Gary Grimshaw: All Grimshaw: I just did the art and then Peter Andrews and John Sinclair would arrange for the printing.

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I was the art director for the Blues and Jazz festival in 1972 and 1973. There were four different versions of the poster and probably dozens of different versions of the flyer. We would just crank them out and Peter Andrews would distribute them all over the Midwest, you know. We did a lot of printing.

Jr. Walker, All Stars at Hill Auditorium - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This show never happened.

Michael Erlewine: Maybe that's why there are quite a few of these around. Would that explain it.

Gary Grimshaw: That would explain it, because for some reason, weather or booking or whatever, the show never happened.

Detroit, Uprising at Carpenter Hall - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I did that. And this has a really good picture of the Nation Logo, which was really worked on. When I left Detroit in 1989, I had been working with John and that was pretty much in their files. All that stuff. And I didn't go through the files and pull out all my original art. I just left it.

Michael Erlewine: John Sinclair contributed just a ton you're your stuff to the Bentley Historical Library.

Gary Grimshaw: That's a good thing. I am really glad he did. Because he is like me. He can't afford to archive this stuff and keep it in good condition, so it was a very smart thing to do.

Gary Grimshaw: Gary Grimshaw: I was the art director for the Blues and Jazz festival in 1972 and 1973. There were four different versions of the poster and probably dozens of different versions of the flyer. We would just crank them out and Peter Andrews would distribute them all over the Midwest, you know. We did a lot of printing.

Billboard: Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival at Gallup Park

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is a billboard. It was right downtown Ann Arbor in the bar zone. This is the sketch for it. We painted it in the Rainbow Production space and it was huge. And we painted it. The billboard company gave us the panels. And we painted it and they put it up and it was up for two months. It was funny, because we were so thrilled. It went up on a Sunday morning. We had been working on it for weeks. And they are puttin' this up. But the guy who showed up to put it up. He was ... it was too early for him or something. He almost fell down and broke his neck puttin' the thin up, you know. You can see the grid system on it? That's how we did it. We did the sketch. And then we got the big panels up and drew the grid on there and painted it. That was fun doing that.

It was based on this painting, a festival... I can't remember the artist who did it. Bruegal. And we used that as a model, but instead of native costumes, we put everybody in hippy garb. But that was just a sketch that we worked from, but the original painting was great.

Right after the festival, they pasted something else over it. It's gone.

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: Gary Grimshaw: This is one of Paul Grushkin's (Art of Rock) favorites. When they had the book release party in New York, he had this framed. It was like the first thing you saw, when you walked in the door. It was one of his personal favorites.

RPM - Rock Posters of Michigan at the Henry Moore Bates House, Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: This is a very rare Grimshaw poster. In 2001, Michael Erlewine, archivist and founder of ClassicPosters.com, held a preliminary meeting of local poster collectors in the Ann Arbor, Michigan area to inaugurate RPM (Rock Posters of Michigan), a group dedicated to documenting and collecting Michigan posters. It was attended by about 25 poster collectors and artists and held at the Henry Moore Bates House in Ann Arbor. Some of the most active collectors and artists in the Midwest attended and each received one copy of this poster, designed by Gary Grimshaw for the event. No others were distributed. Soon afterward, Erlewine relocated to upstate Michigan and was too far away to continue the meetings. This poster is printed on heavy stock and there are no reprints.
