Free Ticket for Grande Ballroom

Notes: Grande Free Pass

The "Good for One Free Trip at the Grande" pass has more than passing meaning. It was the key to distributing the Grande postcards on the street and in schools. Volunteers, mostly high-school-aged kids, would get a stack of cards to pass out, plus a free pass to the Grande for themselves. Russ Gibb, who ran the Grande Ballroom, says that this was the ticket, so to speak, to bring in the crowds. While posters in Detroit did not have the effect that posters in San Francisco had, and handbills were only somewhat better, the cards turned out to actually work best. These cards are quite rare.

MC5, Prime Movers Blues Band at Grande Ballroom - Detroit, MI
Notes: This a very hard-to-find poster, oversized, brilliant colors, and stunning in person. There may be 7-8 in existence. This is one of the most sought-after posters in the series and is considered essential for any collection, but few have turned up.

Poster only. No card or handbill. Rare item. Grimshaw's third poster for the {Grande Ballroom}, nicknamed the "Zebraman." Now, this poster is good sized, measuring something like 17.5x2.5, but it seems, in person, larger than that. It is very striking. The image came from a Time Magazine cover and was first used by {Alton Kelley} and {Stanley Mouse} for FD-28 of the {Family Dog} series, something like a month earlier. This is a sentimental favorite for me, because I played at that gig and my band, The {Prime Movers}, is on the poster. Nostalgia aside, this is a powerful poster when seen on the wall.

Guerilla Lovefare: MC5, Spike Drivers at Grande Ballroom - Detroit, MI

Notes: Poster for an event that never happened, on newsprint, so all copies are deteriorating. Many are signed.

This was perhaps the last poster Grimshaw created before he traveled to the west coast. This is not a Russ Gibb production, but is listed as the "1967 Steering Committee." It was intended as something similar to the San Francisco 'Human Be-In' and included a long list of poets, musicians, radicals, and the like. As the story goes, the police were so worried about this large gathering of radical types, that they engineered a huge bust just prior to the concert, concentrating on the heads and the psychedelic community. Russ Gibb, who had made the ballroom available, decided to withdraw the use of the Grande, and the event never took place. The poster was printed on newsprint, and copies that have not been treated for acid deterioration are doing just that, deteriorating. Hard to find.

Gary Grimshaw: This is January 29th. And this is on newsprint. I don't think the event happened. I think when this was published and put up around Detroit, they decided to bust Trans-Love and there was a big raid. At the night that it happened, they arrested like 30 or 40 people and most of them were released the next day, except for John Sinclair. I wasn't there. I had been hanging out there and doing all this art work and stuff, but I was visiting my girlfriend that particular night, so I didn't get caught up in the raid. I don't think that show ever happened.

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: A poster and a flyer

There are two See posters. We were all ticked off at Russ Gibb, because he wasn't paying enough to even cover our expenses. The See was a club on Woodward Avenue. The building was owned by Gabe Glantz, the same guy who owned the Grande Ballroom and he agreed to let us rent it from him. Russ Gibb Never owned the Grande Ballroom. Gabe Glantz owned it. So we decided... Hey, and it's a small club, basically. In fact it was famous for being Mitch Ryder's home club. He played there a lot as Billy Lee and Rivas, and all that. We were in there for like a month and a half. The place was a wreck. We cleaned it out. We put a killer juke box in there and put all our own records in it. We did this beautiful mural, me and Carl Lundgren and a bunch of other people... did a beautiful color mural all over the front of it. Leni Sinclair might have a photo.

We working like dogs on this place. The first weekend, we had a good crown and it was a great show. The second week. You know, Gabe Glantz had driven buy and seen all the people going in and out. So the second week, only the Friday night show happened. So he came in and robbed the till. He took all the money out of the till, because he owned the building and was owed the money. You know. Allowing us to get the thing rolling and pay him a percentage of whatever we made... but he said "I want all my money right now". He came in and took all the money out of the till. John Sinclair couldn't pay the bands. He didn't realize that just because the money was in the till does not mean that that's all profit. You have to pay the bands. And so, he put us out of business. He wouldn't give us the space to get it going. He just wanted all his money right now and he just destroyed the business. And we were very upset about this. Beside ourselves.

Apostles, East Side Orphans at Grande Ballroom - Detroit, MI

Notes: Hard poster to get, but much sought after

Reprint is 3-color silkscreen, 30th anniversary edition, signed edition of 330, published by Grimshaw in 1997, printed by the Firehouse, S.F.

'Black to Comm' refers to a switch on the back of a guitar amplifier.

Gary Grimshaw: that's the reprint of the Grande Ballroom poster from 1967. I can tell because I wanted to reprint this and I paid to have it published. I asked Leni to send me a copy of the original print of the photo, but she had cropped it differently. On the original version, his face comes up higher, but because she had cropped something off the bottom, I had to touch it up.

Zen Macrobiotics and the Unifying Principles, Boston, MA

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I did this in Detroit. This is 1966. I knew of Macrobiotics just from books. When the warrant went out for my arrest, Judy and I decided to move to Boston, so that we ... We were both into Macrobiotics, just from books. We got to go to all of Mishio Kushi's meetings. He did it in this church right off of the Boston Commons. We would go to cooking classes and hang out with all the Macrobiotic people in Boston. It was great. This preceded all that. 1966.

Gary Grimshaw: reprinted by L'Imagerie in L.A. They paid me my art fee. I had to make that up from scratch, because I didn't have the original art. But I had a printed copy. So I just put some heavy-duty rag-content tracing paper over it and redrew it. I tried to make it exactly like the original, which it turned out to be. On the reprint it says on the bottom: "Reprinted by L'Imagerie." They printed up 1000 copies and gave me a bunch

Jimi Hendrix, Soft Machine at I.M.A. Auditroium - Flint, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is a pretty rare one. It was done as a poster and a card. And it was like booked at the last minute, because Jimmy at been playing at the Masonic and in Toronto and Russ Gibb was really anxious to book him again, because the other two shows sold out, so he booked this thing in Flint and it was an overnight bang-out job. But I guess it is really rare, because they used them all to advertise. It is not my best work, but it is something that from a collectors point of view is very valuable.

Notes: Poster is $500-600, and still shows up from time to time.
Postcard is the least-known postcard. As the story goes, the cards seized in transit at the Canadian border. The border guards did not want printed advertisements brought into Canada. Instead they wanted such things printed in Canada. Only 4 copies know to exist.

Reprint is 2-color offset, 13x22, 250 (1992) printed by L'Imagerie,

MC5, Zenta at Straight Theater - San Francisco, CA

Notes: The originals says "The Rip Off Press" and "Gary Grimshaw," at the bottom of the poster.

The reprint says (c) 1969,1997 Gary Grimshaw, "A Big Production, Printed by the Firehouse Gary Grimshaw" in black, under the art.
Reprint is 6-color silkscreen, signed and numbered edition of 263, printed by the Firehouse, S.F.

Gary Grimshaw: I lived in Marin County, in Mill Valley. That was printed by Ripoff Press, which did comic books, basically. It was Gilbert Shelton and a couple of other people ran the Ripoff Press.
And that printed the day before the show in this warehouse printing operation. I think they were just all used for advertising. I can remember me, and John Sinclair, and a couple of other people standing around in this print shop the day before, crankin' them out. But I reprinted that myself with the Firehouse guys as a 6-color silkscreen. I had time to do it right. But the original was just jammed out. I think the reprint looks ten times better than the original.

Detroit Rock and Roll Revival: Chuck Berry, MC5 at Michigan State Fairgrounds - Detroit, MI

Notes: Beautiful poster, but rare. And the card is very hard to find.

reprint is 4-color silkscreen, 490 signed and numbered from Ghetto Press

Gary Grimshaw:

Two versions of this, the original offset printing and the silkscreen reprint (1995). 1000 reprints. All sold out. I kind of got jacked around on that deal, because the print, Ghetto Press, Chris Doris, I gave him permission to sell them in order to pay the printing bill. And what he did was he sold them all and paid the printing bill and stuffed the rest in his pocket. And I only got a few copies.

Savage Grace, Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen at Diana
Oughton Memorial Park - Ann Arbor, MI
Notes: Gallup Park
Gary Grimshaw: That is Bad Dog (Al Shamie). 1970. This is when I came back from California, turned myself in, and poster bail. And at that time, Al Shamie was the art director for the White Panther Party. This is probably one of the first things we did in collaboration. I did all the lettering and he drew the picture.

Will Be Open! the Park, N. Baltimore, Ohio
Notes: Done as poster and handbill. This is the flyer. The first year that The Park was open, it was very successful, but then the state police tried to shut them down, in Ohio. They went through all these legal procedures and pretty much got the thing back on track and they wanted to let everyone know that, yes, we are going to be open this year. This piece was done very quickly, according to Grimshaw.

John Sinclair Freedom Rally: John Lennon, Yoko Ono at Crisler Arena - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Reprint (1993) has actual bands that player and is 3-color offset edition of 1000, printed by L'Imagerie, under license from Grimshaw.

Gary Grimshaw: there are two or three different versions of that, different colors.

John Sinclair Freedom Rally

Part of an interview of {Peter Andrews} by {Michael Erlewine}:

Peter Andrews: {John Sinclair}... in the previous year, 1971, I produced the {John Sinclair Freedom Rally}, while I was the events director at the university, at {Crisler Arena}. The {Rainbow People} or the {White Panthers} had a student organization, so by all legal rights, they could sponsor a concert on campus.

I'm not gonna' go into that whole show at this time, because that's a whole long story itself. {John Lennon} and {Yoko Lennon} agreed to appear on the show and they agreed to appear on it and I agreed to promote it. I wasn't going to promote it if it was gonna' be a bomb.

And I didn't want to be associated with it and I didn't think it would be good for {John Sinclair}, this big event. What it was gonna' show, was how little people really did care for him being in jail. He was fading away. This was the government's hope.

Before john Lennon agreed to appear, I thought it was going to be a disaster. I produced the show. We had {Stevie Wonder}, all these radical speakers of the day. It was filmed; it was broadcast live. On and on and on. {John Lennon} appeared and I had a chance to meet with him about three different times. {John Sinclair} got out of jail, right after that event.

They granted him bail and the marijuana laws were overturned, the CIA bombing things was all in that too. They beat the government, which really stopped the government from having permission to wiretap without permission. A very landmark case. Not many people know about that. Not to mention overturning the marijuana laws.

Amboy Dukes, Arthur Big Boy Crudup at Toledo Sports Arena - Toledo, OH

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is one of the earliest posters I did.
Michael Erlewine: You are one of the only poster arts who would dare to put that much open color in a poster? Any comments?

Gary Grimshaw: It adds drama to it, you know. If you get too busy and fill up every square inch, then the eye just gets diffused. I was trying to make very bold designs that would catch your eye immediately. That was the point.

Gordon Lightfoot at Hill Auditorium - Ann Arbor, MI Notes: Gary Grimshaw: "I like the Gordon Lightfoot and the use of the color blue."

This ultra rare piece is classic Grimshaw, one of the few artists who used large areas of color, as you see here, an expanse of red with blue embellishment. This is a stunning piece. Most of Grimshaw's work from this period have this very simple use of color, always producing a calming effect on the mind. Works great on the wall. - Michael Erlewine

Ten for Two World Premier, John Sinclair Freedom Rally

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: There is a story for you. Have you ever seen the movie "Ten for Two." It's never been commercially released. It was financed by John Lennon and Yoko Ono and John Sinclair could tell you who was the actual director of the movie. It was great. It was the concert at Chrisler Arena to get John out of prison. I did a poster for it. I did the final full-sized art for the movie and it was sent to New York for them to print it. They were going to release the movie commercially, but that was when John Lennon got threatened with deportation, so John and Yoko made this decision not to put the movie out, because it would be inflammatory. He wanted to stay in New York. He didn't want to be shipped out, so... Yoko's got the final art. She never sent it back. I don't have any copies of it.

Michael Erlewine: Did it look like this sketch?

Gary Grimshaw: Yup. That was the basic format. That was the first sketch and when... The movie was shown twice in Ann Arbor and I loved it. I thought it was great. I forget exactly what year, but at some point in the late 1980's or early '90s, Yoko allowed John Sinclair to show it at the Michigan Theater as a benefit thing for Sinclair. I did the flyer and everything for that. So, it was that same logo. And they have like a program thing. It's really cool. I only got to see the movie twice, when it was... like the premiere.

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival 1972 Gary Grimshaw: there are four different versions of this, and the only difference between them is the ticket information (at the bottom of the poster). I think this is the second version. The last version was meant to sell at the show and there is no ticket information. The commemorative one has not ticket information.

And there is one before this that has less information. And there is one after that with more information. And a fourth edition that had no information.

Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I was the art director for the Blues and Jazz festival in 1972 and 1973. There were four different versions of the poster and probably dozens of different versions of the flyer. We would just crank them out and Peter Andrews would distribute them all over the Midwest, you know. We did a lot of printing.

Paul Butterfield Blues Band, DR. John the Night Tripper at Masonic Temple - Detroit, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: Received mail with postcard of the guy with Sunset at Masonic Temple:

This was Gemini Presents, which actually Russ Gibb. No poster or handbill. I did this in Detroit, after I moved from Ann Arbor. OA was slightly larger than this and I may have it in my files. I have a big file cabinet in my studio, but I really haven't gone through it. I know when you were in Oakland you went through my big flat files of posters, but all of these postcards and flyers are in this black file cabinet. That's something I really need to do, is go through all this. I think this might be in there.

Michael Erlewine: I like this piece; DO you?

Gary Grimshaw: Oh Yeah. I had time to work on it. Its all a matter of time, you know. People will call you at five o'clock and they want it next morning and you just have to scramble. Sometimes you have a couple of days to work on it.

Future World Conference Festival at Hill Auditorium

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: They were very successful. And at Hill Auditorium, too. This was the first series and the second series, they didn't really have it booked. But they wanted to get a poster out.

As you can see, I did a split fountain. The top of the Earth is red. So, the second one, I blocked out that red. See, there is no red. It is yellow. So the earth looks like the way it is, like a big blue marble. So this art is better, but the event-lecture series wasn't.

Detroit, Uprising at Carpenter Hall - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I did that. And this has a really good picture of the Nation Logo, which was really worked on. When I left Detroit in 1989, I had been working with John and that was pretty much in their files. All that stuff. And I didn't go through the files and pull out all my original art. I just left it.

Michael Erlewine: John Sinclair contributed just a ton you're your stuff to the Bentley Historical Library.

Gary Grimshaw: That's a good thing. I am really glad he did. Because he is like me. He can't afford to archive this stuff and keep it in good condition, so it was a very smart thing to do.

Gary Grimshaw: Gary Grimshaw: I was the art director for the Blues and Jazz festival in 1972 and 1973. There were four different versions of the poster and probably dozens of different versions of the flyer. We would just crank them out and Peter Andrews would distribute them all over the Midwest, you know. We did a lot of printing.

Billboard: Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival at Gallup Park

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is a billboard. It was right downtown Ann Arbor in the bar zone. This is the sketch for it. We painted it in the Rainbow Production space and it was huge. And we painted it. The billboard company gave us the panels. And we painted it and they put it up and it was up for two months. It was funny, because we were so thrilled. It went up on a Sunday morning. We had been working on it for weeks. And they are puttin' this up. But the guy who showed up to put it up. He was ... it was too early for him or something. He almost fell down and broke his neck puttin' the thin up, you know. You can see the grid system on it? That's how we did it. We did the sketch. And then we got the big panels up and drew the grid on there and painted it. That was fun doing that.

It was based on this painting, a festival... I can't remember the artist who did it. Bruegal. And we used that as a model, but instead of native costumes, we put everybody in hippy garb. But that was just a sketch that we worked from, but the original painting was great.

Right after the festival, they pasted something else over it. It's gone.

Gil Scott-Heron, Midnight Band at Michigan Theater - Ann Arbor, MI

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: I drew that picture of Gill Scott-Heron.

It was like a tracing of a photograph. I did the cross hatching and all of that. That was done after I moved to Detroit, because I was still doing poster for Rainbow, even though I was living in

Eden Food's Desktop Calendar

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: Eden Foods. Richard Doris (?) and I did this. God, I went nuts, because I drew all the numbers and then I cut them out and pasted it up. And it is color-coded too, like the zodiac signs. The colors all match. I color keyed the calendar to the signs. Richard designed the art in the middle, but he didn't know how to do color separation, so I did the coloring.

Notes: This poster was done by Grimshaw, while employed at Art Rock. It was intended to be a multi-colored piece, but Art Rock management decided to make it one color on a colored stock. This was a disappointment to Grimshaw and explains why it does not have the colors we might normally associate with a Grimshaw piece. He did not pick the colors. -- This from a conversation with Gary Grimshaw.

Yardbirds : Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony (original art)

Notes: This is a large (2 by 3 feet) poster with a beautiful design by Gary Grimshaw. Only 25 of these were ever printed and all are signed by the artist. This piece was for the induction of the Yardbirds into the Hall of Fame, but there was a problem with getting the permission to issue the poster. No more were printed and only a few were ever released. The rest, I am told by the owner of them, are not available. The impact in person of this poster is an experience. It is one of Grimshaw's best pieces.

reprinted 1993, signed and numbered edition of 200
Grimshaw's favorite poster, according to the artist.

I bought a few of these posters from the first edition from Kris Dorris in the early 90's He also sold me a few of an additional run done at the same time as the first edition. They are done using a psychedelic inking style he was working with at the time. So the yellow area is a swirling multi hued pattern. The edition was only 28 and they were signed and numbered by Gary. I may be able to unearth one for you to post an image of on the site. Chris used the same technique on the show poster he did for my show with Lee Conklin. -- Moxie Gusto

RPM - Rock Posters of Michigan at the Henry Moore Bates House, Ann Arbor, MI
Notes: This is a very rare Grimshaw poster. In 2001, Michael Erlewine, archivist and founder of ClassicPosters.com, held a preliminary meeting of local poster collectors in the Ann Arbor, Michigan area to inaugurate RPM (Rock Posters of Michigan), a group dedicated to documenting and collecting Michigan posters. It was attended by about 25 poster collectors and artists and held at the Henry Moore Bates House in Ann Arbor. Some of the most active collectors and artists in the Midwest attended and each received one copy of this poster, designed by Gary Grimshaw for the event. No others were distributed. Soon afterward, Erlewine relocated to upstate Michigan and was too far away to continue the meetings. This poster is printed on heavy stock and there are no reprints.

Gary Grimshaw

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is a photograph taken by my uncle Ivor Davidson. He printed all the Grand posters. He did all the film work on it. And he was also a photographer and he liked to play around with screens and moiré patterns and stuff. And that was my girlfriend at the time, Judy. We were together for three years, in a common-law marriage. He took this picture of us. I have a print of this that doesn't have the moiré pattern on it.
