MATRIX MENUS

Back in the salad days of Matrix Software and beyond, we had an incredible chef, who was also a poet, and a friend of the family. His name today is Martin Wolf, and back then he was just Marty, but oh could he cook, and we eat.

For years he made lunch for our crew, and it was free. However, every Friday night Marty would make an incredible meal to which any staff member was invited, and also various townspeople. After work, we would all gather.

And each week, my brother Tom Erlewine, who was our resident artist, would make a menu for the next week, post it on the wall, and we would sign up for it or just show up.

Here are 128 of those menus. I'm sure some have been lost or dissapeared, but from these you can get a good idea what it was like.

TEMPURA

"How is tempura made?"

1 Marty buys fresh vegetables in the produce department all over town.

2 He buys a bag of "tempura skins" in the FROZEN FOOD SECTION.

3 These skins are carefully hand sorted by size, and matched to vegetables for a perfect fit.

Ziploc seals on tempura skins seal flavor in, disapp during cooking.

4 The veggies are boiled until tender, then tossed to a golden brown. Before serving, Marty brushes each with a little cooking oil to keep them from sticking together.

WATCH OUT, CAUSE NEXT WEEK IT'S:

CORN!

AW SHOCKS!

Well alright now. Stop me if you've heard this one. You see, a STRING went into a bar for'n to git a drinka lickin. Bar tender said "NO STRINGS SERVED HERE." So Mr. String left kinda depressed like. But he had a plan. He went outside and tied himself all up so he had a great big knot what looked just about like a head, and he frayed the end of the knot so it raveled up just like hair. He looked pretty much like me (some say he was a know-how). So he goes back in to the bar for 'n get that drink. The

"she was purtin' the drink on me. But she did not."

And how bout this: A injun goes to a psychiatrist 'cause he can't sleep at all. He's havi' the same dream over and over - One night he dreams he's a teepee. The next night he dreams he's a wigwam. It's drivin' him CRAZY. NIGHT AFTER NIGHT. Ole doctor lissen to this an' says:

FINE VITTLES!
Y'all come!
