The Sun, Moon, and Earth Angle Today

Right now there is an opportunity to kind of wake up a bit and get a clearer picture of what you have been going through lately. Awareness as to what recent experiences have been about all about may be dawning and, depending on how you feel about that, you may want to share these experiences or at least tell others about them. You are getting a better handle on things and at the same time may feel an inner shift of direction toward a more responsible and receptive approach to life. It may not all be roses.

You are coming up for air or getting something of a glimpse of what you have been into lately, perhaps an overview. You may not like what you see, but keep in mind that if you can see what could be better, you can change it to that. Just because it is not perfect is no reason to give up on it just yet. The key is not to just blindly push ahead (as you may have been doing), but pause, step back, and accommodate. Work with the situation and above all be receptive. Bend with the wind.

Contour Drawing by Michael Erlewine