

THE COMING FULL MOON: SOME SURPRISES

September 25, 2012

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

We are headed for a Full Moon the next Saturday night, September 29th at 11:20 PM EDT and this one will carry a punch, so take note. Usually I like to distinguish between astrology events that take place outside, in the world around us, and those that take place inside in our inner and more personal life. This coming Full Moon will do both, affect us deeply inside, but also be very visible externally or physically as well.

One of the keywords for the next New Moon will be 'Change,' with a capital "C," and it may come as a surprise or suddenly at that. Shocks may be out breaking. And this will not be simply superficial, but strike at the heart. In other words, this can be personal and hit home where we feel and are most vulnerable. And as sensitive as this will be for some of us, this is not all bad news.

The next few days also has some useful insights and movement as regards the life path, which could be as simple as career movement of an uplifting nature. The outcome of all this change could be an improvement in life style or path, i.e. career, the way we travel or go through life. Embrace them.

In summary, this is a very strong Full Moon, with lots of activity, and possibly full of surprises. You might even want to be a little more careful than usual just now. It is not all sweetness and light. And perhaps most important, be prepared to be touched where you are vulnerable. As mentioned earlier, events outside and inside kind of match up, so this is a double whammy, so take note.

Consider this a turning point and make the best use of it.