

GOODNIGHT ALL
April 22, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

It was good listening to Khenpo Karthar Rinpoche teaching live on the Internet earlier. Now I am off to sleep some but will no doubt be up at 2 or 3 AM, which seems to happen every night.

I leave you with this photo taken yesterday. It is of the daffodil leaves pushing up through the ground to play their part. I am always more interested in the shoots, leaves, and buds of daffodils than the resulting flowers. They present an eerie but lovely world all their own. I look forward to them every year and they are here now.

